Performance times are approximate. It is very difficult to predict exactly when each group will perform. These events can run ahead or behind schedule, depending on how long each routine is, how much judging time they allow between dances, and how many teams back out at the last minute. The later in the day, the more the schedule can vary. There may be very little time for each group to warm up and rehearse, or there may be a lot of down time waiting for our turn. It's best to approach these events with a go-with-the-flow attitude and just enjoy the performances. Extended family should plan to arrive well in advance, so as not to miss our performance.

There are usually about 100 performances on the schedule from many schools and dance programs. I encourage JFK dancers to come early and/or stay after their performance to watch other groups. This is a fund-raiser for the Legacy Saberettes dance team. We appreciate the opportunity to be part of it.
